

Accolade . . Moore, 87

Eyebrow raised as 007's star crumbles

By RYAN KISIEL

SIR Roger Moore has been left shaken and stirred after seeing his Hollywood star crumble.

A fan tweeted a photo of the James Bond veteran's tribute on Tinseltown's Walk of Fame showing a corner had been broken off. There were also chips around the marble tile's edges.

Sir Roger, 87, replied to the tweet, saying: "Looks like I might need touching up a bit... my star is crumbling!"

Thousands of tourists have stopped at the spot in LA, resulting in wear and tear. An embarrassed Hollywood Chamber of Commerce spokesman said the star would be repaired this week.

Sir Roger was presented with the accolade in Hollywood Boulevard in 2007. He appeared in seven James Bond films in 12 years before quitting in 1985. He previously won legions of fans as TV's The Saint.

Trucker's £5m rap

A LORRY driver has been jailed for five years for trying to smuggle £5.6million of cannabis resin to the UK.

British border guards working in France found the stash under furniture after stopping the vehicle at the Channel Tunnel entrance in June.

Two tons of drugs were found in sacks dipped in wax and hidden in shrink-wrapped boxes. Francisco Santiago Solera, 49, from Madrid, was found guilty of illegally importing drugs and jailed at Canterbury crown court.

Border Force boss Paul Morgan said: "This was an excellent seizure."

Lad bang to rights..

A SECURITY guard has been hailed a hero for saving a tot from choking on a piece of sausage.

Cherice Wallen performed the Heimlich manoeuvre on the boy, four, after he turned blue at a Christmas market in Manchester.

The banger popped out of his mouth and the lad recovered.

Cherice, 29, said: "It was terrifying. I'm just glad I was able to help."

Singer Ed Sheeran has put a selection of his clothes up for sale on eBay to raise £7,500 for children's hospices.

JT BUYS GOLF LEGEND MONTY'S PROPERTEE

EXCLUSIVE by RICHARD WHITE, Chief Showbiz Reporter

CHELSEA skipper John Terry has bought golf ace Colin Montgomerie's old home for £4.35million.

The seven-bedroom mansion sits yards away from the massive estate he sold last year for £16million.

Chelsea star's £4m pad

Terry's new home boasts four reception rooms, six bathrooms and a two-bed staff annexe.

But the half-acre plot marks a huge reduction from the sprawling "palace" he had created in Oxshott, Surrey.

A friend said: "It's a lovely house but a considerable downsize. Obviously he has invested his huge profits from the last place elsewhere or they are sitting in the bank."

Terry, 34, paid £1.8million for his old home in 2008 and spent £4million in renovations — including a fishing lake. It had nine bedrooms, eight bathrooms, a swimming pool, sauna and cinema for him, wife Toni and their twins.

The ex-England captain is thought to have made a profit of £10million after getting "an offer he couldn't refuse" from the mega-rich Sultan of Oman.
